Wartburg Concert band leaves on its annual tour tomorrow morning. About sixty persons will make the trip.

The band will give six concerts in three states during its seven-day excursion.

First performance will be in Westchester, Ill., on Sunday evening. Monday night's program will be in Sheboygan, Wis., while Tuesday the band will move on to Fond du Lac, Wis.

THURSDAY'S CONCERT will be in Pine Island, Minn. Friday's performance will take place in Minneapolis, Minn., and Saturday's in New Richland, Minn.

Concluding the series of concerts, the band will present its home concert in the chapel-auditorium on Sunday, March 12.

According to Director Robert E. Lee, "the band is stronger than ever this year."

To assure top strength the band practiced four hours yesterday and is having a rehearsal today.

MRS. JOHN CHELLEVOLD, wife of the dean of faculty, is assisting Mr. Lee in chaperoning the students.

The program features 12 numbers, varying from marches to hymns to portions of symphonies. Variety numbers include "Death and Transfiguration" and a three-part selection entitled "Study in Steel."

Other special numbers include "Overture to 'Rienzi,'" "I Diaboli Rossi," "The Three Trumpeters," "Sioux Panorama" and "Nightfall."

'Glass Menagerie' On Stage Next Week

"The Glass Menagerie," the story of two women, one afraid of the future and the other living in the past, will be presented next weekend.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. in the chapel-auditorium Thursday, Friday and Saturday, according to Director Vernon Lestrud.

Junior Kathryn Koob, portrays Amanda, the faded Southern belle who lives in the past. Her son Tom, who also serves as narrator, is played by junior Don Ehlers.

Laura, the daughter who takes refuge in the glass menagerie, is portrayed by sophomore Karen Arns. Senior Bob Boettcher is the gentleman caller, the embodiment of Amanda's dreams.

The play was written by Tennessee Williams, former student in the Writers Workshop at the State University of Iowa.

Students will be admitted with their activity tickets.

That Sleepy Homily 'Time Is Money' Has More Truth Than Fiction Tonight

Fellows, here's a chance to keep your date out an extra hour tonight — for a small fee.

"Penny-a-minute" night will be innovated at Wartburg tonight as the women's hours will be extended by one hour, provided that a penny is paid for each minute exceeding the regular hours.

The usual hour for women on Saturday night is 11:30. Tonight Wartburg women students, whether having a date or not, may come in any time before 12:30 p.m., paying a penny for each additional minute after 11:30 p.m., according to Connie Wiechers, president of Wartburg Women's Student Association.

Money collected tonight will go into a fund for the WWSA to be used for something later in the year, such as a party for the girls.

This experiment is being sponsored by the Women's Coordinating Board. The project has been successfully tried in other colleges, and if it is successful here, it may be tried again sometime in the spring, commented Miss Wiechers.

Several Students Become Guinea Pigs As Psychology Classes Do Experiments

By Elaine Melchert

Did you ever have the urge to be a guinea pig? Members of the Introduction to Psychology class are finding out by serving as subjects for the Applied Psychology and the Experimental Psychology classes.

By acting as subjects for the experiments, the students in the introductory class may receive a better idea of the topics they are studying and can benefit from the experiments, according to Dr. Wilmut Fruehling, head of the Psychology Department.

Students develop and construct the experiments themselves, giving them an acquaintance with the difficulties and errors a person can encounter in experimental work.

Dr. Fruehling feels that a student tends to "learn more by trying." Though it takes considerable time, a student will gain a better appreciation of the project, a clearer understanding of it and a keener interest in the results if he does it all himself.

The Applied Psychology class criticizes its own experiments, to help in the procedure, and suggests ways of eliminating weaknesses.

"I am amazed at the intelligent thinking shown by the students. In analyzing last year's experiments, the projects seem very worthwhile," commented Dr. Fruehling.

The Experimental Psychology class is in the experimental stage at Wartburg, since this is the first time this course has been offered here. The class conducts experiments representative of different areas of psychology.

"NOW THINK of a number, Jack," says senior Don Claggett as he tries an ESP experiment on Jack Horner.

A modified team approach to teaching is being tried in the introductory psychology course. Dr. Lotus Knief, Psychology Department, is helping Dr. Fruehling, and demonstrations and films are being used to supplement lecture periods.

Students are presently conducting a wide variety of experiments. In the Experimental Psychology class, members are probing into such subjects as extrasensory perception, the effect of caffeine on reaction time, color mixture, reflexes and audio and vision tests.

Applied Psychology classes are working on such experiments as procedures in making time and motion studies in industries, hypnosis, dream interpretation and advertising motivations.

Experiments will also be conducted using four white rats from the Psychology Department and dealing with the activity level of the rat and the effects of rewards on learning.

Guinea pigs don't necessarily have to be rats or monkeys, as psychology students are finding out.

Jepsen Edits

While Ye Olde Editor Linda Mugridge is gallivanting in the wilds of Minnesota this weekend, Managing Editor Chuck Jepsen takes over the reins for this week's Trumpet. Miss Mugridge is attending the student conference at Concordia College.

Becker To Be Featured Speaker At Meetings

Pres. C. H. Becker will be the featured speaker at organizational meetings of two new chapters of the Wartburg College Alumni Association.

He will speak in Cedar Rapids on March 11 and in Iowa City a week later on the topic "Wartburg Alumni in a Decade of Urgency."

Also attending will be Clarence W. Pries, president of the Wartburg Alumni Association, and Alumni Director Bob Gremmels.

Approximately one hundred alumni reside in each of the areas. The formation of the chapters is one of the results of current emphasis on chapter development, according to Gremmels.

Planning committee chairmen for the chapters are the Rev. Kenneth Pohlmann, 1952 graduate in charge at Cedar Rapids, and Robert Snyder, 1953 graduate and now a graduate student at SUI on leave of absence from the faculty of Kansas State University, in charge at Iowa City.

They will attend group meetings pertaining to politics, religion and journalism, according to Fred Mai, student body president.

"WE'LL DISCUSS the formation of a national student government association and other results of the conference at the student body meeting next Tuesday," said Fred.

Yesterday Fred was in charge of a special meeting of the student body presidents of all colleges represented at the conference. They discussed the formation of a National Lutheran Student Government Association.

Wartburg initiated action for such an association at the student government conference held here last May.

A NATIONAL ORGANIZATION of Lutheran colleges would unite the colleges, promote sharing of ideas, problems and their solutions, build morale and improve communications and relations with faculties and administrations by meeting with the present Faculty Association of Lutheran colleges.

Between two hundred and three hundred students from South Dakota, Ohio, Minnesota, Nebraska, Washington, Texas and Iowa are representing 11 colleges, four seminaries and a nursing school at the conference.

SB President Nominations Open Today; Close Friday

Nominations for student body president and secretary open today. They will close next Friday at 4 p.m.

Any student may nominate a candidate. Nomination blanks may be found in the Student Senate Room. The blanks should be filled out and deposited in the box provided there.

For a student to be eligible for a student body office, he must meet the following requirements:

1. He must be a junior.
2. He must have a grade point average of 2.500 for the past three semesters, during which semesters he must have been enrolled at Wartburg.
3. He must plan to attend Wartburg College for both semesters of the following year.

THE CANDIDATES may then start campaigning next Friday, the day which the nominations close. The final election will be held the following Friday, March 17.

Two seniors, Ed Scharlau from Independence, Wis., and Bob Steigerwaldt from Northbrook, Ill., were selected as co-chairmen for the student body project at the Senate meeting last Monday evening. A carnival chairman has still to be selected.

These co-chairmen are starting to consider possible dates for solicitations and the carnival. Committee members are being selected.

TWO AMENDMENTS to the constitution of the Student Senate were proposed at the last meeting. Both concerned allowing more leeway concerning dates for holding elections.

It was proposed that the election of freshman class officers may be held during the first three weeks of each semester and that the election of student body officers may take place any time after the end of the first semester. These proposed amendments will be acted upon at the next Senate meeting.

In a brief report given by Tom Christensen, chairman of the Academic Life Committee, it was disclosed that this committee is helping to plan a joint panel discussion for a future convocation. This panel will consist of faculty members from the Christianity Departments of Wartburg and Luther.

Ah, Togetherness

"The more we get together, together, together,
The more we get together, the happier we'll be."
This familiar rally song of countless conventions takes on new meaning this weekend. The schools of the newly merged The American Lutheran Church are gathering at Moorhead, Minn., in the first conference of its kind.

Because of the homogeneity of the participants, the conference may prove to be worthwhile beyond expectations of conference worthwhileness.

Conventions and workshops are too often useless because they cover too much territory. They have a shotgun effect. Everyone gets a little, but no one gets enough.

By its very nature, therefore, this conference, dealing with the problems of relatively small Lutheran colleges, should make its participants happier. An almost ideal situation for the interplay of useful ideas has been set up.

The rally song also has another significance for this conference. Much preparation went into the church merger, but the end result still bears the stamp of unmistakable newness.

Increased contact with other merger participants is definitely to be desired. The Moorhead conference gives the leaders of tomorrow's TALC the chance for communication now.

A more personal consideration is also involved. If Wartburg is to become a leader among the schools of the merged church, it must merit this position. It must show interest in conferences like the one this weekend.

Clothes Make The Man

Dress-up night, like ever so many other things at Wartburg, is an old tradition whose purpose is not entirely clear to most students.

Apparently it is an attempt to break the week's monotony, to add a touch of culture or to make the mid-week meal more special.

Occasionally, or rather frequently, students question the validity of these reasons. After all, the argument goes, why should I have to put on a suit just to eat cafeteria food?

That's just the point — no one is actually forced to. For only on very rare occasions is a student asked to leave the lunch line because he is not properly attired.

A student's reaction to a loose regulation such as this is often a reflection on his character.

Of course there are nights when "I just don't feel like dressing up," or when students are too busy to change clothes.

But a person who habitually forgets to dress up is often the same one who is seen wearing blue jeans to class.

Wartburg College is certainly not unique in requiring special dress on certain evenings. For example, Grinnell College requires its male students to wear a coat and tie to every evening meal, which is served to them by waitresses.

This is quite impressive at first glance. It gives one a favorable impression of the cultural and indirectly the intellectual level of the institution.

Yet a regulation such as this serves absolutely no purpose unless most of the students favor it. Designed to broaden the student's outlook on social events, it works an adverse effect if he feels he is forced into doing something against his will.

Perhaps the real test would be to make dress-up only a strong request instead of an obligation.

Would enough students be in favor to keep the tradition alive?

Would you dress up?

JUST LIKE CHAMELEON,

Student Body Shows Change

By Linda Mugridge

The Wartburg student body is a chameleon.

Present Wartburgers would not be mistaken for their predecessors. Reflecting the changes in society, its students have modified the tone of the school.

"Today's students have a broader outlook," commented Dr. G. J. Neumann, 50-year member of the Wartburg English Department. "They get their education from more sources."

REPRESENTING the sciences, Dr. Elmer Hertel, head of the Biology Department, agreed.

"They are better informed in sciences," he said.

The average Wartburg student has been exposed to more things, according to Dean of Students Earnest Oppermann. He rates television and travel as important educational influences.

"The student of today thinks nothing of spending a weekend in Chicago," he said.

When there were only two cars on the Wartburg campus, the students by sheer proximity were more closely knit. The small size of the student body also greatly influenced the atmosphere.

"The whole campus would get enthusiastic about a single social event," reminisced Oppermann. "And when a prank was played, everybody knew about it."

Briner

Knights 'n' Daze

Spring is the time of the year when a young man's fancy turns lightly to thoughts of . . . running for Student Body President. Amid clamorous cries of "My friends . . ." and the resounding smack of babies being kissed, we will scratch our heads and try to decide who is the best man to hold down the castle for the coming year.

The comment that Wartburg's student elections leave something to be desired is often heard, so I decided to look at a few of the exchange newspapers which abound in the Pub House and see just what students at some other colleges are doing in this respect.

The results, though not heartening, should at least make us feel a little better about the relative quality of politics, Wartburg style.

A young lady, running for student body secretary at a small New England college, began her campaign speech as follows: "Members of the faculty, A students, B students, C students, D students and friends." She won by a landslide.

At a small Midwestern church school, it has just been announced that for the 13th year in a row, Fred Krentsch has been elected president of the Student Union Board by an overwhelming write-in vote. Fred Krentsch is the local garbage collector.

The real topper of this year comes from Newberry College in Newberry, S.C. The complete platform of one of the candidates for SBP is quoted below:

"For my platform I offer no promises which I feel I cannot keep. I will work for you, the students, with all of my energy. I favor anything for the good of the students so long as I think that it is right. I favor an evaluation committee made up of students who will report directly to the president on items they evaluate from the students' point of view. I promise to work faithfully and tirelessly for you, the students of Newberry College. My door will always be open to you, my fellow students; and I will be happy to help you with any problems that I may be able to."

(I humbly apologize to Governor Erbe for saying that he holds the world's record for use of cliches. It seems that Mr. Erbe will have to be content with holding down the runner-up spot.)

All this seems to me to add up to the conclusion that student government at W'burg isn't in as bad shape as we sometimes think. Maybe we should even go so far as to listen when the SBP candidates speak in convo next week.

RIDDLE OF THE WEEK

Since when do law-abiding Wartburg students study for exams in moving automobiles? And what local personages have been making unusual study suggestions?

THE PRANKS of the present student body occur about as frequently and involve about as many people as the pranks of 10 years ago, according to Oppermann. However, a smaller per cent of the mushrooming student body knows about them.

As far as social life is concerned, Dr. Hertel believes that present students are better adjusted socially. Styles in dress have certainly changed from the blue jean era 10 years ago.

"We have more students from larger high schools now," Dr. Hertel said.

This fact also seems to contribute to the more knowledgeable ways of present Wartburg students.

Marriage among students, which has become much more common, is another reflection of society in general.

ACCORDING TO Oppermann, 12 years ago if a student married before he graduated from the seminary, he was somewhat of an oddity. In contrast, just two years ago Wartburg College furnished a roomier trailer court for its married students.

Students have also taken more responsibility in another field. Participation in student government has increased greatly, a significant change mentioned by both Oppermann and Dr. Neumann.

"Before World War II nothing much was done in student government," said Oppermann. "Then the GI's came back and wanted a voice in doing things."

Student government on campuses throughout the country has developed within the past 15 years.

With all the changes that have taken place recently, students of today are prone to take for granted the struggles that went before. They expect things to be handed to them on the proverbial silver platter.

"Wartburg students just accept the school's present facilities," commented Oppermann. "They don't realize the struggles of previous student bodies."

THIS ACCEPTANCE also shows up in grades, according to Dr. Hertel.

"Although students test out just as well as ever," said Dr. Hertel, "they don't seem to prepare their lessons from day to day."

Students accept the fact that an overabundance of available jobs de-emphasizes the importance of grades.

In another important phase of life at Wartburg, religion, change is also evident.

"I feel that the student has changed in view of the fact that the religious climate in our nation is changing," said Dr. Karl Schmidt, head of the Christianity Department.

"The tension between faith and doubt, for whatever reasons, has greatly increased since the post-war years," he continued. "This is strongly reflected on the campuses of our country, also at Wartburg."

"FROM MY point of view, this offers dangers but also opportunities for cultivating a deepened, maturing faith which can face up to the challenges of skepticism and meaninglessness."

In all respects, then, the Wartburg student body is changing. Included under the blanket term "alumni" are horses of many different colors.

Or, to mix the animal kingdom, there are just so many chameleons.

Axmen Host ISTC To Finish Season

By Paul Baumgarten

Wartburg has perhaps its toughest test of the season tonight as it plays the Panthers of Iowa State Teachers. The Panthers blasted the Knights in an earlier encounter in the Tall Corn Tourney by a 100-53 score.

Teachers features a well balanced attack led by Pete Spoden at center and tremendous jumper and rebounder Jim Jackson at forward. TC also possesses a pair of high-scoring guards to make life even more miserable for the Knights.

Knight seniors Dave Jensen, Marv Ott and Kermit Urbain will be playing their last games in a Wartburg uniform.

Jensen will be trying to add to his career total of 1,031 points. He is one of only six players in Wartburg history to score over 1,000 points.

TUESDAY EVENING the Knights gained a tie for second place in the final Iowa Conference standings by defeating the Spartans from the University of Dubuque by a 96-84 score.

Dubuque seemed completely outclassed by both the scoring punch and the rebounding of the Knights. Although they were able to put together several offensive threats in the second half by use of a fast break, Wartburg always seemed to come back for that crucial basket to save a comfortable lead.

Dubuque high man was Har-ken with 23, followed by Lock and Rathje with 20 each and Yapp with 17.

FOR WARTBURG Don Hein took the scoring honors with 22, followed by Marv Ott and Dave Jensen with 18, Dar Oehlerich with 16 and Al Buenning with 13.

In preliminary action Wartburg freshmen defeated a scrappy bunch of Dubuque freshmen by a 77-71 score. The lead changed hands several times during the course of the game, but midway through the second half Wartburg took charge and went ahead to stay.

High scorers for the Wartburg freshmen were Frank Reavis with 24, Ray Bye with 18 and Darrell Ellingson with 12.

LAST SATURDAY evening the Knights took a beating at the hands of the Luther Norsemen by a 67-56 score.

Wartburg led through most of the first half until, with 3:55 remaining in the half, Luther went ahead for good. At the half Luther led by a five-point margin.

Luther put three men in double figures in the scoring column. Ron Hested led with 19, followed by Dave Grove with 16 and Loren Hyland with 10.

Wartburg had only one man in double figures, Don Hein with 17. Following him were Dave Jensen with 8 and Dar Oehlerich with 9.

DESPITE BAD KNEES,

Hildebrandt Has No Losses

By Darrell Jobman

"If we get some breaks, we could win it. The pairings will have to come out right," said senior wrestler Roger Hildebrandt last weekend about the conference meet here today.

If Rog has anything to say about it, Wartburg will make a strong defense for the part of the crown it shared with Upper Iowa last year. Rog is undefeated so far this year, as he has beaten eight opponents and had one draw.

"I should have beaten him bad," says Rog of the draw with Simpson's 167-pounder.

Included in Rog's victory streak was a 9-6 decision last Saturday even though he sprained his shoulder midway through the match. Despite the injury, Rog said early this week that he expected to wrestle in the Conference Meet.

"I'll wrestle in the Conference," said Rog. "Whether the shoulder will be ready or not, I don't know."

Rog has been one of the mainstays of the Knight wrestling squad since becoming eligible in the second semester of his sophomore year. He lettered as a freshman at Iowa State University and has lettered every year here.

Last year Rog compiled a 6-3 mark and his 8-0-1 record this year places him among the best wrestlers in Wartburg history.

Coach Norm Johansen has high praise for Rog's ability.

"I think Roger is one of the better wrestlers we've had for some time — in knowledge and application. He's been handicapped with bad knees. This has hurt him, but he's done a marvelous job," said Johansen.

Rog hurt one of his knees playing softball and the other wrestling. Bad knees kept him out of two meets this season.

Rog is a hometown product, having lived in Waverly all his life. In his senior year in high school he won 21 of 24 matches and went to the state meet at 145 pounds.

Rog, a physical education major who wants to coach in northeastern Iowa, started his high school athletic career in football as a fullback and linebacker and in basketball rather than in wrestling.

Teammates like to kid Rog about his superstitiousness. While on his winning streak, Rog interested students to attend these games. They will be played under regulation rules on a full-length floor. The first game both nights starts at 6:30.

Grossmann I and Basement versus Off-campus ended in a tie for the championship in the American League. Cotta and Waverly, champion and runner-up in the National League, will represent their league.

Roger

has worn only one uniform and won't use another.

"People who don't come to wrestling meets" is Rog's major complaint about wrestling. He says the team needs support and people who yell.

His biggest wrestling thrill so far was his decision last year over Fox of Dubuque when Fox had a string of about twenty victories going.

Rog's win in the conference tournament gave him the 157-pound championship and helped Wartburg surprise the rest of the field.

Although Rog feels that Luther will win the Conference, he says, "Wartburg and Dubuque will be tough."

He also lists Upper Iowa as a major threat. Wartburg chances to repeat for the Conference crown may be slim this year, but senior Roger Hildebrandt is definitely the man to watch in the 157-pound class. He's leaving this year's Conference meet open for another big thrill.

Jomen Could Win As 5 Make Finals

By Darrell Jobman

Five Jomen reached the finals of the Iowa Conference wrestling meet to be completed today as defending champ Wartburg surprised everybody in the preliminaries last night.

Wartburg trailed strong Luther by only three points, 48 to 45, after last night's action and with a few breaks could win the conference crown this afternoon at 1:30. Parsons and Upper Iowa with 32 points apiece were in third place, and Simpson with 18 and Dubuque with 13 brought up the rear.

ALTHOUGH THE Knights have five finalists compared with Luther's four, Luther appears to have the advantage because of their small lead and because they also have four consolation finalists to pick up points on depth. Wartburg has only one consolation finalist.

Two of Wartburg's defending champions made their way into the finals again. Senior Roger Hildebrandt continued his string of victories by getting his ninth win of the season in a 2-0 decision to return in the 157-pound class.

Senior John Sternberg was not at his best form but was still good enough to take two decisions to be able to defend his 123-pound crown. Wartburg's Bill Smith moved into the 137-pound finals with a 5-3 decision.

TWO FRESHMEN — Jim Koepke and Duane Meier — were big surprises as both came through to reach the finals. Koepke escaped with 8-7 and 3-2 victories, the latter on a judges' decision, to get into the 147-pound finals. Meier got a first round bye and won his semifinal match 4-1 to make today's 177-pound finals.

"We got a break in the draw and breaks in a few matches," said Coach Norm Johansen. "I just hope the fact that we had breaks last night doesn't go against us today."

Of the seven divisions the Jomen entered (there was no 167-pound entry), they received five byes.

About 800 Take Part In Student Study

Almost eight hundred students took part in the study of the Wartburg Student last Tuesday by filling out a detailed opinionnaire, according to Dr. Wilmut Fruehling, head of the project committee.

Students who didn't fill out the opinionnaire in convocation may obtain a copy in the deans' offices until Wednesday or in the Student Senate room until next Monday.

Next Monday the committee will begin placing the data from the opinionnaire on IBM cards. IBM machines at Lutheran Mutual will be used for actual tabulation of the data to begin in a month.

Dr. Fruehling said that the committee secretary has been directed to send a letter of appreciation to the Academic Life Committee and to Student Body President, Fred Mai, and vice president, Larry Collmann, to thank them for their help with the project.

Hey, guys, think! Do you know any gal worth 60 cents? If so, tonight's your chance to keep her out an extra hour after the TC basketball game.

Each minute your girls are out after 11.30 p.m. will cost you 1 cent. Spend that money wisely, fellows.

You are all invited to Alpha Chi's March meeting on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Little Theater. A panel composed of Alpha Chi members will discuss Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie."

Then, be sure to see the production of "The Glass Menagerie" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 9, 10 and 11, in the chapel-auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p.m. each night.

Friday night why not head for Knights Gym? A Physical Education College Fun Night is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Various activities are planned to guarantee you an enjoyable evening.

Let me close with a few suggestions for study breaks during the week. Monday — an egg sandwich off-campus; Tuesday — a drink of cold water from the new fountain in Luther Hall; Wednesday — an invigorating 6:15 a.m. breakfast with your best girl; and Thursday — try Convo.
